

Melatonin is a unique, complex molecule that is naturally present in virtually every cell of the body. Melatonin is considered to be the global master bioregulator of the whole body, inter-coordinating many of the body's complex systems, including:

- ✓ quality sleep
- ✓ brain support
- ✓ the immune system
- ✓ antioxidants
- ✓ cardiovascular system
- ✓ neuroendocrine system
- ✓ bone health

The levels of melatonin peak in one's early years, then as the body ages, the biosynthesis of melatonin begins to decline drastically.

WHAT IS MELATONIN?

Melatonin is a unique immunomodulatory compound which supports a wide range of physiological functions. It is produced by the body's pineal gland, a master gland located in the center of your brain. The secretion of melatonin is inhibited by light and stimulated by darkness. Therefore, melatonin production naturally rises at night.

However, this may be compromised in individuals who have altered circadian rhythms or sleep patterns. The use of melatonin to promote restful sleep is well documented and has received substantial publicity for its ability to promote natural sleep patterns and maintain normal circadian rhythms. This extraordinary hormone is one of nature's most effective antioxidants, offering unsurpassed protection against a broad range of free radicals which can cause cellular damage.
